

LIFE / STYLE & FASHION / FASHION TRENDS

See also: fashion news

Five things that helped us survive NYFW 2015

September 17, 2015

12:50 PM MST

Photo by Joe Kohen/Getty Images

As we reflect on another New York Fashion Week \(NYFW\) that's come to a close it's safe to say that this fashion week in particular marks a huge shift in the industry. This shift? Fashion week is more accessible than ever versus previous years when the event was an invite, trade, and industry only affair. In addition, NYFW was held at various venues across New York City versus last year in which the main venue was the infamous Lincoln Center.

This week, a to z list celebrities saw a variety of new Spring trends and collections from established to emerging designers. Models literally 'walked on water' at the Tommy Hilfiger presentation, a designer Beyonce's likes, Michael Costello, presented an elegant collection full of fitted, yet flowing chiffon gowns and one of the most talked about, unexpected presentation this week by the one and only, Kanye West, who presented a minimalistic collection similar to his debut collection a few seasons ago.

Photo by Joe Kohen/Getty Images

Nonetheless, fashion week is equally hectic, as it is, glamorous. Mostly, glamorous. View the gallery above for five items that helped us survive it. Until next year NYFW, we'll see you soon London Fashion Week.

Photo 3 of 6

Why we love it: This COOL BODY BLISS by Basq NYC immediately helped our sore soles. Apply on your feet, legs and even back to soothe minor aches and pains. Get it now: basqnyc.com (Basq NYC)